Dear

OBSCURED FOR

Last October, a group of senior Health Care Professionals led by one of our colleagues visited Nestlé in Switzerland and the Nestlé Research Centre. This article, which appeared in the "British Journal of Midwifery" dated July 2006, is written by them following the visit and covers their view of the long-standing issue on Nestlé and the marketing of breast-milk substitutes.

I trust you will find that, whilst it makes interesting reading, it also gives you an insight into this long-running issue.

Yours sincerely,
